The Rocky Hock Anchor

The Mission of Rocky Hock Baptist Church is to magnify Christ and make disciples of all people.

Pastor's Corner

The Bible calls us to be strong and courageous; it is one of the most repeated phrases in the book of Joshua. But the Bible also tells us that strength is made perfect in our weakness. When we are weak, He is strong. So, which is it? Should we be strong? Or should we be weak?

What does the Bible mean when it tells us to be strong? After all, if we adopt the world's standard for strength, we will probably miss the Biblical meaning altogether. Psalm 46 can guide our understanding. It says in verse 10, "Be still and know that I am God." We often focus on the "be still" part. However, we should pay more attention to the "know that I am God" part. After all, the Psalm is about God's strength. He is the one who causes wars to cease. He is the one who breaks the bow and shatters the spear. He is the one who will cause nations to tremble. He is the refuge. He is the strength. Therefore, strength means resting in God's power and protection, not my abilities or powers. He is strong; that is the reason for courage. The reason you should not fear in times of trouble is because He is a refuge from the storm, He is the strength of his people. The call to be strong is a call to be still and know that He is God.

In our weakness, we should "be still and know that He is God." You don't have to know what to do in a situation, you just have to trust who He is. You don't have to know why something is happening, you just need to know where to find refuge. He is God. It's His job to know why, and it's your job to trust Him.

Grace and Peace!

"The 5 Year Old Hand-Shakin' Preacher's Kid"

"Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it."

~ 1 Corinthians 12:27

Having been on staff at Rocky Hock for 3 months now… you may be wondering how we've adjusted to life in the flatlands? Or, to put it more bluntly… if we like it here as much as we thought we would?

I've had several people ask me this question… and I'm happy to give you my honest appraisal! But first, we're gonna need to take a step back in time to the early 2000's; to the country-mountain church of my childhood (as mentioned in an earlier edition of The Anchor); a place where I wasn't referred to as "Pastor Trey," but rather… "Lil Trey: The 5 Year Old Hand-Shakin' Preacher's Kid."

Every Sunday morning, I would make my rounds. My goal was to shake every hand in the congregation (of about 250 or 300). This was no small task for a boy of only 5, but I never seemed to care! I felt that it was incumbent on me to walk down every single aisle and welcome every single person. I don't think I ever missed a week! I loved it! I enjoyed greeting the people, because they were "my people," and I wanted them to know that I cared about them!

As an adult, I find myself keeping the same tradition. My favorite thing is to go around Rocky Hock and shake hands. I find myself looking forward to it throughout the week, and I don't like being robbed of this time!

It's always a blessing to see our Deacons up front, and check in with them… to wave at Mrs. Nixon sitting in front of the stained glass window in the side wing, and talk to Donna Peele's Dad, and be posed theological questions from Maddie Claire's Grandpa, and get soft peppermints from Leon and Joyce Evans, and speak to Gail Boyd, and the Sykes' kids, and the Phil Smith row, and the Obers, and the Doris Tynch row, and the balcony (when there's time), and any visitors! I just love our church family. And shaking hands makes me feel connected to the church body in a powerful way.

So, to answer your question – Yes. We really like it, here! Rocky Hock feels like home, and her people feel like family!

In light of this, on Sunday morning, when you see me comin' your way… know that I'm not shaking your hand, or greeting your family, because it's some sort of chore… I'm doing it because I want to, and I've been looking forward to it all week, and God's people encourage me, and we're happy to be here! What a joy it is to know that God has placed Julianna and I here, in the flatlands, to serve alongside you wonderful people, who love the Lord, and love us so well.

I hope going to church and being with God's people makes you as happy as it does us. This month, I challenge you to try and find new ways to interact and connect with this body of believers. It may just change your life!

Three-Legged Stools and Finding Our Voice

I work with the two and three year old class in our Sunday night programming at my church. I love this little group for so many reasons, but especially because I can see their faith and cognitive development grow by leaps and bounds simultaneously. So much of what we do follows a routine. We sing our "Welcome" puppet song, then the "Color Song," and finally our "Quiet Song" of prayer. I always cherish the moment when we sing the "Color Song" and I ask (for the umpteenth time), "Who made everything (in nature) with a color?" and they can finally answer "God!" This connection and recognition usually happens around January each year. This past week, one of the four year olds in Children's Choir, began quietly singing one of our Easter Songs as we transitioned to Sunday School time. It was such a sweet little sound that I had never heard before over the louder "big kids." She had found her voice and felt safe to share it at church!

The early years of faith formation are so important. Did you know that by the age of four, children identify as churchgoers? How do I know? Well, because there have been numerous faith development studies on the topic, but also because when my girls were between the ages of three and four, they would shout, "There's my church!" as we drove by anytime during the week. Identifying themselves as churchgoers is critically important in faith development for children, and it is at these critical faith development ages that children are the perfect age for Missions Friends.

Preschoolers are also BIG helpers. They want to experience everything and get their hands dirty in the process. They can also tell you with great gusto that Jesus loves them. Missions Friends comes alongside and shows them that they can be BIG helpers by loving others and sharing Jesus' love just like missionaries are doing around the world. This is missions in its purest and simplest form. Missions Friends is not babysitting, it is important missional formation and faith foundation laying. It helps children to find their voice in missions.

In an article on the IMB website called "Your Church's Children Can (and Should) Be Involved in Missions," Taylor Johnson describes ministry as a three-legged stool. "The three legs represent worship, discipleship, and missions—the three big buckets of ministry. Most everything we do in our churches flows from one of these three ministry areas. In my experience as a children's worker, I've found that many children's ministries are successful in discipleship and maybe even worship, but oftentimes, missions seems to be the missing leg. And a two-legged stool won't stand on its own."

Children's Missions Education and opportunities are that critically important third leg and WMU does it so well. So perhaps conversations with our church leadership shouldn't start with, "Why aren't we doing Missions Friends or Children in Action?" but rather by asking the question, "Is our church trying to sit on a two-legged stool?" Leadership might say no to new programming offhand, but perhaps the right question could lead them on a path of self-evaluation which could lead to missions education action. Could you be the one to help your children's program "find its voice" in missions?
